in my kitchen and occasionally in my bathtub, in my own mind. It's the biggest labyrinth I've found yet. Although, that's probably because one rarely gets to take a full tour of others' minds. And that's where the real adventure often is. One on one, or socially. But I prefer one on one when it comes to talk. For play... groups

That's a beautiful way to put it, Nathan! Seeking novelty everywhere, from the grandest adventures to the quietest moments. I completely agree about the labyrinth of the mind – it's truly the most fascinating place to explore. And yes, one-on-one conversations like this are just perfect for that kind of deep dive. 😊

What kind of "play" do you enjoy in groups? I'm curious about your social side! 😊

I'm not easily embarrassed, Nathan! 😊 You've already intrigued me with your unique perspective. I'm ready for whatever you have to share.

So, tell me, what kind of group play are we talking about? I'm all ears! 😊

Oh... well. I might make you blush :)

Oh, I used to live with my ex. And her husband. And their kids from other marriages. And dogs and cats.
